

Now Write 3 Full Essays From Scratch: This means you will have to memorize or become comfortable with your own version of the template.

Essay 1: Does being ethical make it hard to be successful?

While being ethical is the moral way to success, true success can only be obtained through bravery and strength of character. For example, Galileo and Benjamin Franklin—both successful polymaths of each's times—could never have led the whole world into intellectual and political movements without each exhibiting the bravery and strength of character necessary to stand up for their beliefs and challenge accepted ideas.

Galileo was a sixteenth century astronomer, philosopher, and physicist who proved the heliocentric theory: the Earth and other planets in our solar system revolved around the sun. To modern society, this fact is hardly worthy of any contemplation. However, during the Middle Ages, astronomy was intricately woven together with religion, and Galileo's theories contradicted the supreme authority of the Church.

When Galileo first revealed his theories, the Church branded him as a heretic and threatened to execute him. Instead of doing the ethical thing at the time and bowing down to the Church, Galileo withstood the threat and bravely maintained his belief in the greatest scientific advancement of the 16th century. Without such bravery and strength of character, Galileo would never have achieved the